

The newly won "Free time" professional INDEPENDENCE

The newly won "free time". Professional independence. Frank Duval and Kalina Maloyer also use it to engage in social projects, now with even more insistence. They intensify a project which they have taken to heart since the 70's: They help the poor and ill children of this world. They finance the construction of a childcare centre in Sao Paulo (Brazil), a refuge for sexually abused children in Sri Lanka, as well as, in the south of India, a home for boys and girls who are polio victims. This is undertaken by the couple privately and without publicity from the media. This participation, the on-site action, is also integrated into his work.

The song "Children of Our Time", comes to life at this time (1989), a song dedicated to the forgotten children of our time.

With his following album "Touch my soul", Frank Duval finally caters for one of the discographic highlights of the year. Already the title-song – a tender "declaration of love to love" (East West records) has a very sympathetic effect. "Touch my soul, teach me to love."

This musical creation turns into meditation of the heart. "Love is an easy way of healing." It is about love as light, as a healing force. Spoken metaphors, which Duval takes up again and again – with which he, however, to use his own words, has certain "reservations."

"It is this difficult walking on the edge. On one side, I have problems with concepts such as love, light and vibration, because they are exhausted and strained by the pseudo-esoteric industry, to the point of rejection. On the other hand, I want to express myself, and realize that I cannot get round certain preconceived concepts.

So where does the composition, the lyrics, start without entering the realm of would-be esoteric. The essence of an analysis consists of the attempt to recognize things. For me this means: Leaving it open, gaining space, honesty. If I am honest, I can express myself in the way I want to. You will understand me."
